

To: Werner, Lora[Werner.Lora@epa.gov]
From: Ferrell, Mark
Sent: Tue 2/25/2014 1:52:11 PM
Subject: Re: Hey Mark - trying to factcheck some dft Congressional responses on our end

And again yesterday apparently:
<http://wvgazette.com/rssFeeds/201402240360>

From: Werner, Lora
Sent: Monday, February 24, 2014 10:10:51 AM
To: Ferrell, Mark
Cc: Helverson, Robert
Subject: Re: Hey Mark - trying to factcheck some dft Congressional responses on our end

This helps very much!!

From: Ferrell, Mark
Sent: Monday, February 24, 2014 10:10:10 AM
To: Werner, Lora
Subject: RE: Hey Mark - trying to factcheck some dft Congressional responses on our end

Lora, we live in Zone One, the first area to be ordered to flush. After we did that, I never smelled the licorice odor again. Until last week. It was present one morning, and gone before lunch. Others I know tell me anecdotally that the odor comes and goes. And we've had several instances now where the odor has presented at local schools that had already been flushed tested and cleared.
<http://www.wvgazette.com/News/201402170041>

Mark Ferrell

EPA Region 3

Office of State and Congressional Relations

West Virginia Liaison

Charleston, W.Va.

(304) 542-0231

From: Werner, Lora
Sent: Monday, February 24, 2014 9:45 AM
To: Ferrell, Mark
Subject: Hey Mark - trying to factcheck some dft Congressional responses on our end

Have you or other people you know observed any odors in last few weeks?

I know on Freedom site they still observe odors and probably also in Poca.